

pH absorption

The pH level in the root zone is very important. All elements needed by the plant have their own availability range. When pH is too low or high, certain elements will not be up-taken anymore and your plant will show deficiencies. pH control is key to keep nutrient's availability balanced. Measure the pH of your nutrient solution and that of the root zone.

